THE TWO ROSES.

Young Ann reclining on a bower,
Gazes out on Flora's fair domain;
Her eye roved over many a flower
That sprung from mountain vale and plain;
For well the gardener's active care,
Flowers from each soil had cherished there.

But nothing long could fix her sight,
Though beauty seem'd in each to breathe;
Till 'fair in form and colours bright,'
The fairest flower in Flora's wreath,
Upon a Rose-bush flowering nigh,
A Rose was seen of deepest dye.

But now, soft kissing shrub and flower,
Its chang'd its course with breath of morn,
And as it rustled through the bower,
New fragrance on its wings was borne;
Ann saw a Rose of damask pale,
Whose breath had scented sweet the gale.

Gently she said, "If yonder Rose,
So small and pale such sweets bestow,
What will that noble one disclose
Whose leaves with richest colours glow;
She pluck'd the Rose but, though so fair,
No sweets it yielded to the air.

Then, thus she moralizing spoke,
"This, on thy scentless leaves I trace,
That gay apparel oft may cloak
A heart devoid of ev'ry grace;
And those whose talents brightest shine,
Care not to dress in robes so fine."

SONG.

THE LASS OF TREDYFFRIN.—INSCRIBED TO MISS P. S.

How sweet the retrospective view,
To halcyon days of early youth,
When bright was joy without alloy,
And ev'ry eye was fancied truth;
But tho' on angel wing they flew,
Tho' faded ev'ry boyish dream,
Yet still I see, in memory,
The bonny lass of Tredyffrin.

With her I bounded o'er the plain,
And trod the florid vale along,
And then would she, in maiden glee,
Each happy promenade prolong,
What youthful lad can e'er restrain,
The impulse of his jovial heart;
Tho' ravis'd bliss, yet ev'ry kiss,
Endeared the lass of Tredyffrin.

But ah, the joyless moment came,
When fate decreed that we should part—
Her falling tear, as crystal clear,
Spoke volumes to my drooping heart.
Oh! I have felt in ev'ry vein,
The pang that separation brings,
But nought so keen as parting with My bonny lass of Tredyffrin.

SONG.

Divested of prejudice we, sir,
Have travers'd the world near round,
Such pleas'd in th' Union to see, sir,
Such comforts for mortals abound.
For fine is the beef of Columbia,
Her fowls, her fat turkeys, and geese.

The full cup of Bacchus will cheer us,
When sorrows unsought for arise,
The wine which abounds will endear us
To sweethearts, acquaintance and wives.
Then toast the roast beef of Columbia,
Her fowls, her fat turkeys, and geese.

We've pastures extensive and plentiful,
And exultant num'rous they yield,
And 'mong the rich blessings here sent us,
We sit under Liberty's shield.
Then Oh! the roast beef of Columbia,
Her fowls, her fat turkeys, and geese.

The horn of old Plenty discharged,
And Peace her sweet halo hath shed,
May the hearts of us all be enlarg'd,
The Widow and Orphan be fed.
For fine is the beef of Columbia,
Her fowls, her fat turkeys, and geese.

Ere life and its joys have past o'er,
Or we strike immortality's string,
Let's revel in prospect of more
And with accents of gratitude sing,
Fine is the beef of Columbia,
And fine is Columbia's roast beef.

ANSWER TO ALFRED.

A lock of that soft flowing hair,
Which of late you so feelingly crav'd,
Shall be yours, as a pledge that you share
In the love which you think is yet sav'd.

When first you saw me, then not my hair,
Alone, elicited thy lays—
My form you called graceful and fair;
My eyes own'd the songs of thy praise.

I believe that your passion is true,
But what will you think if I show,
That false are those locks which you view,
And bald is the head where they flow.

When unbound, with the wreath you admire,
Each night on the toilet they fall:
They once grac'd the brows of Maria,
The beautiful, the lovely, the tall.

Then a lock of those ringlets so fair,
Place next to thy heart—'tis confest,
There, dear Alfred, I never could bear
That another's should knowingly rest.

To Miss —

Oh, what thrilling emotions I felt,
As enraptur'd I gaz'd on thy love-beaming eyes;
And with feelings of happiness too have I dwelt,
On the smile, and the blush, and the glance, and the sigh.

But alas, how deceitful our fond hopes will prove,
When we grasp at the rose and find only a thorn;
Thus awhile I pursued the fair phantom of love,
Till I found it was nothing but hatred and scorn.

What was life then to me but a desolate void—
Ev'ry moment was teeming with sorrow and pain;
For the thought of the happiness I had enjoy'd,
Only heightened the misery that ran in each vein.

Then beam not a glance of affection on me,
Nor bid my fond bosom with tenderness swell;
Tho' I once lov'd you dearly, yet now I am free,
Then call me not fickle when you broke the spell.

The following lines were occasioned by reading Minaldo's address to Susan.

TO MISS —

Farewell, farewell, oh, let me hear,
Those words breath'd forth by one so dear,
There is a magic in them;
When thoughts of parting fill the eye,
And passions in the breast are high,
These words alone can win them.

Fair Friendship's constancy they prove,
And breathing forth the soul of love,
They fall so soft and sweetly:
The sparkling eye their power bespeak,
Like smiles that light the palest cheek,
Where tears are coursing fleetly.

Oh, speak those words—they seem to say,
If fortune, with propitious ray,
Should smile upon our meeting,
With rapture thrilling thro' thy breast,
Thou'lt bid the wanderer's sorrows rest,
And give him kindest greeting.

ROLLA—A BALLAD.

Why falls the lovely Bertha's tears?
Why heaves her breast convulsively?
Her dark blue eye half quench'd appears,
Which lately beam'd so joyously—

What is it darkens Bertram's brow?
What agitates his lady fair?
Alas! the marriage feast is spread,
But why is not Count Rolla there?

The spirit of the Storm rides high,
The tempest bustles in the air,
Fiercely the forked lightning beams
Upon the earth its vivid glare.

Yet not the raging of the storm,
Yet not the lightning's horrid glare,
When Hymen's torch is blazing high,
Can stay Lord Rolla from the fair.

The Guadalupe's turbid stream
Rolls sullenly 'neath Corfu's towers,
And o'er its foaming fretted tides
The spirit of the tempest lowers.

In vain the festive banquet graced
The Corfu Hall, in splendid pride,
Vain was the voice of Minstrelsy,
And vain the tears of Rolla's Bride.

Dark pass'd the night—and morning's beam
Shone bright upon the Guadalupe—
But tell me, Where is Rolla now?
Alas! his sun has set forever.

R.

POLITEWOMEN.—If possessed of truly good qualities, the practice of politeness will give them additional lustre, and render them doubly useful. It is a beautiful and permanent enamel, to all the Christian virtues, and vindicates the Christian character from the imputation of moroseness
and severity. Learning, riches, station, talents and genius, without this "milk of human kindness," are either overbearing
and insolent, or awkward and disgusting.

Moral and Religious.

THE NEW YEAR.

We have now commenced on the journey of another year—and few are able to look back upon that which has just past without mingled emotions of pleasure and of grief. We are pleased on reviewing the blessings we have enjoyed, and are grieved at the recollection of the time we have mis-spent, of the adversities we have experienced, of the friends we have lost,
and of the follies and vices of which we have been guilty. The events that have passed shall return no more. Nothing is now left of the last year, but the remembrance of it, and our account of the use of it that we must one day render to our Maker. The numerous scenes of worldly delight in which we have been actors, the parties we have frequented,
the feasts we have attended, and the vain
display of ourselves which we have often made, now afford us no satisfaction. Our good deeds, our religious improvement,
are the only circumstances, on which we can reflect with complacency. From the past year we may learn much wisdom by weighing impartially the different amusements in which we have indulged, and by determining to follow, for the future, such as are of the truest value. Should we do this, our footsteps will immediately seek the path of RELIGION, whose ways are the sources of contentment and peace—
little, then, would we suffer from the de-ceptions of the malevolent, or the frowns of the rich victim of avarice. We shall be carried towards Heaven upon the wings of every moment, and close our years and our lives with the approbation of our con-sciences. We know that beauty must fade
and become a mouldering ruin—that rank,
and fame, and wealth may now flatter our pride for a day, but must be taken from us at death, and will then appear as dust in the balance without weight, and without regard—that we are all travelling towards the grave—that soon the world will be destroyed, and time shall be no longer—
but notwithstanding all this, our virtues shall flourish in immortality—and the soul,
never-dying, rise at the trumpet call, to hear the decrees of Omnipotence. On the decay of the old year, and on the birth of a new one, we should seriously reflect upon these things, and from some new religious resolutions, that we may possess virtues
that shall survive the destruction of Time,
and through the merits of our Saviour,
procure us a glorious Eternity.

THE MONITOR.

"How comfortable a good fire is in a cold night," said my wife Amy, as she brushed up the hearth, and put on a few sticks of wood that remained in the corner.
Yes, I immediately replied, as is my custom to do to whatever she affirms, and presently fell into a reverie. But all of a sudden the expression returned to my mind, and like one of John Locke's humdrum ideas, would not by all the arts I possessed, be for a moment banished. Being thus compelled to attend to and reflect upon it, I very soon perceived there was something more in the idea than I at first observed, or than is generally associated with the expression.

Night had thrown her dark curtains around the mansion, stern winter had clothed the ground with his fleecy robes—locked up each stream that meandered o'er the field, and sharply whistled through the north key hole; sable were the heavens,
for every gleam of the twinkling stars was intercepted by an impenetrable canopy of clouds; but the taper burned brightly upon my stand—the fire blazed and crackled upon the hearth—Amy was happy and contented,
and I enjoyed all that a moderate mind
could wish; but still my heart was heavy—I felt that all who were as desiring as myself, did not enjoy half those blessings.

When in fancy I looked around, and saw a wealthy man sitting by his fire, and indulging in all the luxuries which could gratify the senses, I said unto myself—that man does not reflect, "how comfortable a good fire is in a cold night," or he would remember the poor these hard times and at this inclement season of the year.

When I saw my neighbour at the "gro-shop," sitting by a stove that would not evaporate the nauseous saline bespattered
over it by the miserable scape-grace creatures who hovered round I could not help exclaiming, "Oh that poor J— really knew "how comfortable a good fire is in a cold night," in the society of a man's wife
and children! then he would be at home, enjoying it, instead of shivering here in this miserable abode of drunkenness, filth
and profanity!

When I heard a man who had his thousands at interest, exclaiming "hard times, nothing to be made now-a-days—wages
must come down—every body will be ruined," &c. &c. merely because he could not accumulate wealth as fast as he did a few years since, when the whole country was rapidly gliding down "the full tide of successful" speculation; poor man I would exclaim to myself, if a few words from one younger than thyself would not offend thee, I would whisper in thy ear from my very heart—think "how comfortable a good fire is in a cold night," and how many other blessings thou dost possess; then be contented—be thankful—look around thee

—see how many lack what thou canst spare,
and be merciful!

KNOW THYSELF.

The Rev. Mr. Colton observes, that "very great personages are not very likely to form very just estimates either of others or of themselves—their knowledge of themselves is obscured by the flattery of others—their knowledge of others is equally clouded by circumstances peculiar to themselves. For, in the presence of the great, the modest are sure to suffer from too much diffidence, and the confident from too much display. Sir Robert Walpole has affirmed, that the greatest difficulty he experienced in finding out others, was the necessity his high situation imposed upon him, of concealing himself. Great men, however, are, in one respect, to be blamed,
and, in another to be pitied. They are to be blamed for bestowing their rewards
on the servile, while they give the independent only their praise. They are to be pitied, inasmuch as they can only view things through the moral obfuscations of flattery, which, like the telescope, can diminish at one end, and magnify at the other. And hence, it happens, that this vice, though it may be rewarded for a time, usually meets with its punishment in the end. For the sycophant begins by treating his patron as something more than a man, and the patron very naturally finishes, by treating the sycophant as something less.

MATRIMONY.

When kind tumult seizes the veins and all the yielding soul is love, let the aspiring youth beware of making promises.

If a smiling season, and the glowing cheek of beauty have exposed your heart to the arrows of love, make a truce with Cupid, until you experience the effect of December's chill frosts upon the ardour
of your passion.

Spring love often freezes in the winter;
and love once congealed seldom pursues its old channel again.

Early marriages, very often, are public blessings; but unhappy matches are a private curse. A man in love is always generous, and a generous person never thinks himself poor.

A young man is too poor to marry until he has the certain means of earning, at least, three times as much in a year as he expends when single.

ASSIGNATION HOUSES.

There is not in the whole empire of laci-vious danger, a more disgraceful and direct avenue to female weakness and wretchedness, to disgrace and degradation, than those infamous auctions of polluted passion, known in the dictionary of dissipation, by the name of Houses of Assignment.

There the hungry lust of loveliness gluts
its gorgeous appetite, amid the bloody ruins of woman's innocence—there the basest avices of licentious bliss triumphs over tears and tenderness, and truth—the extravagancies of guilty desire rush over honour and happiness and humanity to enjoyment—what a putrid picture—what a stinking sketch of the dishonouring depravity of our nature—but some accomplished liar will asseverate, that beauty owes its blight to its own impurity, and that woman's heart is the guarded tabernacle of fatal and filthy propensities—that beneath the angel and affected modesties of their nature, lurk the fœtid flowers of self-desolating voluptuousness. Oh God! did a laser falsehood ever sneak from the leprous
lips of any splendid scoundrel thou has created—did a more monstrous libel ever puke
its festering poison over the chaste and consecrated character of woman's exposed and insulted excellence! be it to a betraying base, little inferior to that of angels—and scarce less gifted in the sweeping omnipotence of mind and meekness, woman rises in bashful majesty from the reluctant arms of her Creator, a bewitching model of delicate perfection, doom'd to charm the fawning viper of our sex's sensuality, to feast
under an atmosphere of tears the hellish
hunger of our passions, and at last, shudder back to eternity, a soiled and shamed, and self-disgusted seraph.

Oh woman, when I behold thee glowing in the florid season of years and youth, of innocence and inexperience, of candour and confidence—believing all who smile on thee
serious, and all who advise thee deceitful—
with the blue landscape of a maiden eye,
covered with the shifting sunshine of undash'd and unthinking enthusiasm, and the romping heart of girlish gaiety quivering with treacherous expectation, too sweet to be suspected, and too flattering to be forsaken, I look on thee as I would on a consumptive plant, whose rosy scenery is kindled from the fleeting fires of its hectic climate, and whose beautiful course is doom'd
to close in—darkness!!

Trust not that man who endowed with the dangerous gifts of a devil's mind in vigour,
and more than a devil's depravity in heart,
with the insinuating deception of a fine
figure and fascinating face, would steal over the scented carpet of beguiling flattery and flowery falsehood to the susceptible affection
of thy nature—and when thy soul is soiled,
and thy spirit swooning, leaves thee for infamy to grasp, for poverty to persecute, for ignorance to insult, with no friend but forsaken virtue to faint at thy frailty, and no
judge but envy and malevolence to breathe
the damning hiss of violated purity, at the funeral of thy character.

"If women did but make a true estimate of their real value, they would not, as they too often do, confine themselves within a small circle of amusement, which will always keep them in a state of infancy. To perform laudable actions, they ought to think more nobly of themselves, and endeavor rather to enlarge than to restrain their sphere of thought. When a woman determines to raise herself above the little objects which depress her, she will find her mind endued with the same powers as those of men. Genius has no sex, and women cannot be too often reminded of this truth, in order to recall them from those frivolous pursuits, on which too many of them seem to have fixed their whole attention."

The way to be welcome.—We learn from a gentleman who was at St. Omer and Calais last week, that his majesty was accompanied or followed on his journey by a light wagon, from which he drew supplies of money for distributing to the populace of the towns through which he passed, and of snuff boxes and rings for presents to individuals. The British public should be made acquainted with the strength of his majesty's claim to the applauses which have been lavished upon him on the other side of the channel; that they may cease to wonder at the sensibility of foreigners to virtues which they at least had so little opportunities of witnessing. Surely the showers of five franc pieces and Louis d'or,
which, we are told, have been seen to issue from the windows of the royal carriage in its passage through the continental towns,
may be admitted as entitling the hand which scatters them to the applauses of those whom they enrich. One beggar at St. Omer's found himself at the conclusion of the scramble in that town, the happy possessor of three Louis d'or! [Lon. Inf.

CONGRESS.—Every one who has paid
any attention to the business of Congress, for the last ten years, must, we think, be convinced, that the present number of the House of Representatives is considerably
too large for the interests of the people,
and that a number, not exceeding an hundred and fifteen or twenty, would do much better.

One hundred and eighty seven members occasion a per diem expense of five hundred and seventy-six dollars, more than one hundred and fifteen would occasion.—
And it takes them as much longer in proportion, to transact the same amount of business.

The travel of seventy-two members to the city of Washington, and their per diem pay for a session of 120 days, amount to $80,640
Add to which the per diem pay of 189 members and delegates, for thirty days, which ought to be saved, were the House reduced to 115 members, 45,360

And the annual saving would be $126,000

An annuity of $126,000 for forty years,
would pay off more than one fifth of the national debt. [Providence Journal.

JUVENILE HEROISM.—A few weeks since the citizens of Londonderry, (Vermont,) having had their flocks annoyed by the ravages of bears from the adjacent mountains, turned out to hunt and destroy them.
Mr. Hazen and his son, a lad about 12 years old, were among the number. A large bear was discovered by Mr. Hazen, who in attempting to disable it, was disarmed and thrown down by the furious beast. Hazen called to his boy in this exigency. The lad (with a presence of mind beyond his years and strength) rushed upon the bear with an axe, and so dexterously applied his blows, that he rescued his father, and they killed the bear. Mr. Hazen was considerably injured, but is doing well. As he fell he clenched the under jaw of the bear, and though his hands were severely wounded, this circumstance probably saved his life. A minute's delay or perturbation in the boy would have been fatal to the father. Courage and action like this, ought to be held up for example.

A short time since the store of Mr. H.
Little, at Bucksport, was broken into. E.
Beaman, a young man of 18, who slept in the chamber, hearing a noise, descended the ladder in the dark, and soon came in contact with the thief. The youth seized a scythe, and attacked the fellow, who defended himself with a knife. A hard struggle followed, and the scythe was broken; but the lad beat the robber so severely with the part which remained, that he fled for quarters, surrendered, and was committed to prison.

EUROPE.—The ship South Boston has arrived at Charleston, (S. C.) in 40 days from Liverpool. The most prominent article of news by this vessel, is the reiterated report that war has commenced between Russia and Turkey. A Paris paper of the 10th Nov. states on the authority of letters from Marseilles and Strasburg, that hostilities had actually taken place on the Pruth. But, in contradiction to this, the London Courier of the 13th. asserts that at the latest dates from St. Petersburg, there was not the least apprehension of a rupture with the Turks. The son of Gen. Freyre has been killed at Paris, in a duel with an old veteran, who had provoked the meeting—he was a youth much beloved, and his death was greatly lamented. Accounts from Barcelona to the 28th October, represent the fever as rapidly declining.—Gen. Vives, the Spanish Minister to America, has arrived at Liverpool.

FOREIGN ARTICLES.
SELECTIONS FROM LATE ENGLISH PAPERS.
ATLANTIC.—A footman of Lord Dacres was hung, in 1763, for the murder of his Lordship's butler. The culprit was 19 years of age. While writing his confession, "I murdered," he stopped and asked, "How do you spell murdered?"

At the beginning of the last century, Mr. Morris, an eminent weaver, had a bill drawn on him for 80,000*l.* which was held by a Foreign ambassador. On his sending it to the old gentleman for acceptance, the messenger was struck with the extreme shabbiness of the dress of Mr. Morris.

The ambassador on this went to have a peep at him, and he was so much terrified at the penury of his appearance, that he betrayed some doubts as to the payment of the bill when due. The man of business immediately offered to discount for a valuable consideration. The Ambassador consented, and the worthy weaver pocketed 4000*l.* the produce, in fact, of his shabby coat.

It is a custom, we believe, with crowned Heads, to ask questions, and proceed without waiting for answers. Our late most gracious Sovereign used frequently to act in this becoming way. Louis XV. one day asked Gradeno, the Venetian ambassador, "How many Members does your Council of Ten consist of?" "Of forty, sire," said the arch Venetian; and the French Solomon proceeded with his sapient inquiries.

SHOEING OF HORSES.—A discovery has been lately made why that useful animal, the horse, has been subject to so much lameness by the shoeing of the smiths. The blame is not totally attributed to the shoe, but to the impetuous disposition of the rider in commanding the smith to complete the shoeing of the horse in a limited time, which consequently would oblige the smith to put on the shoes before the iron is cold; and which, if the least degree of warmth is remaining within the iron affixed to the horse's feet, must unquestionably occasion them to become more heated for horses, and produce a tenderness in the feet. Our correspondent observes, that the shoes, when properly made to suit the size and shape of the foot, should be put into cold water for a quarter of an hour; and were proprietors of coaches and carriers to adopt the system, the complaints of the badness of roads would then subside, from the improved state of the condition of the feet of their cattle.

[London Examiner.]
SALT.—A few grains of salt dropped into water in which flowers are kept, it is said, preserves them greatly from fading, keeping them in bloom double the period that pure water will.—[Ibid.]

AS ANX HILL.—In crossing a field lately, says a correspondent, I felt my foot suddenly sink into a heap of soft earth: an incident which, though it might appear harmless and indifferent, was fraught with consequences the most alarming and destructive. The unguarded step was followed by the slaughter of incalculable numbers, and the awful convulsion of a whole empire! It was a nest of ants: and the measures pursued by the citizens of this calamitous occasion were so curiously interesting as to arrest my attention for a whole hour. As soon as the first terrors occasioned by the shock had subsided I could surmise that an express was despatched to the residence of the king, to acquaint him with particulars, and in less than two minutes he made his appearance on the scene of distress and ruin. He was a fine looking fellow, and though I could perceive his majesty was much agitated at this unexpected disaster, yet he convoked his senate without delay, to deliberate upon the best means of retrieving the loss. There was a very full attendance of members, and one above all seemed to attract extraordinary attention, who was unquestionably the Nestor of the trade. This gallant officer rushed out of the assembly, galloped through thick and thin into the city, upset three or four old females with eggs on their backs, knocked down a fat pismire, and darted down a narrow lane that I afterwards found led to the corn-market: there I lost him.

Pensacola, Dec. 3.
MORE CAPTURES!
We are indebted to the politeness of Mr. Thomas, Purser of the Hornet, for the following memorandum:

"Arrived, the United States ship Hornet Captain Henley, from a cruise, bringing in the armed brig Centinella. This vessel, together with the slave brigantine Pensee, (which parted company three days since,) are ordered here for adjudication. They were taken by the Hornet off Cumberland Harbour, (south side of Cuba.) The Centinella, under Venezuelan colors, but commanded by Capt. Bradford, a citizen of the United States, had some days previously captured the Pensee, under French colors, with 249 slaves on board, and was negotiating for a sale for them on the coast of Cuba.

The Hornet also captured off the West end of St. Domingo, (and dispatched for Norfolk) the armed schr. Moscow, with 20 men; being found cruising without papers. (Information was afterwards had at St. Jago, of her having committed piracy on an English brig laying at Cumberland harbor.)

The Hornet, with her prize, the Centinella, came into our bay on the 30th ult.—officers and crew all well. All our judicial tribunals, denying cognizance of the case, the Centinella has been ordered for New-Orleans, for adjudication, as will be also the slave ship Pensee, if fallen in with—she not having been heard from since she parted company.—[Floridian.]

SOUTH AMERICA.
The following confirmation of the important rumors from Lima, &c. (says the Connecticut Herald of the 1st inst.) has been furnished us by Don David C. De Forest, Consul General of the Republic of Buenos Ayres, resident in this city:

"New-Haven, Dec. 29, 1821.
"Gentlemen—I have just received, (forwarded to me from Buenos Ayres,) No. 1, of the Government Gazette, of Lima, published after the entry of Gen. San Martin, with the Liberating Army, giving a detailed account of the proceedings of the people of that city of Kings, by which it appears, that a great number of the most respectable citizens, including some eight or ten noblemen of great wealth, and the Arch Bishop, had assembled in Congress, as Representatives of the city and province, and declared for absolute Independence.

"I have also received, (published in the Gazettes of Buenos Ayres,) the official communications from Gen. San Martin, to the chief magistrats of Buenos Ayres, and Chili, informing them that the Liberating Army, under his command, entered the capital of Peru on the 10th of July; that the Vice Roy, with the European troops, had previously retired in the direction of the mountain, and were followed by his cavalry and light troops; and that the Castle of Callao, (the fort, a few miles from Lima,) was held by about 800 of the enemy's troops, was closely besieged by land and water; and was expected to surrender in a few days.

"The reports respecting the state of things in Peru, being now confirmed, there does not remain a doubt in my mind, but all the Spanish part of this vast continent, from the southern boundary of the U. States to Cape Horn, being at this time under the control of its native inhabitants.

Very respectfully, &c.
DAVID C. DE FOREST.

FROM THE N. Y. COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER.
Imprisonment for debt.—It was proposed by a number of humane citizens on Christmas-day to procure the release of a number of those imprisoned in the jail of this city for small debts. On enquiry it was found that only the following number of this class of debtors were in confinement:

1 for $41—1 for 24 10—1 for 34—1 for 5 12—1 (a female) for 200—1 for 15—1 for 37 14.
The female, we understand, was imprisoned by some one at Philadelphia: and we are happy to add, that our sheriff, who spent his Christmas at that place, succeeded in procuring her release.—This is not the first act of benevolence on the part of the sheriff.

[This sheriff, whose name we are proud to record, not only because he is a particular and long tried friend, but because it is a matter scarcely to be admired in him, whose constant habit it has been to commit such acts, is no other than the editor of the New York National Advocate, M. M. Noah, esq. lately consul at Tunis, and formerly at Riga.]

The sum of $4,100 damages was given on Saturday last, in the Supreme Judicial Court, Boston, in favour of a boy, who had been abused by Captain Knight while on board his vessel, the Delphos, on a voyage to the East Indies. The boy is now in the lunatic hospital, suffering, it is supposed, from the effects of his ill treatment.

The Boston Daily Advertiser received this morning says the case is not fairly stated. It was not proved that the boy is in the lunatic asylum, suffering from ill-treatment, and a motion has been made for a new trial.

Three dollar Camden Bank notes, altered to tens, have been offered at the banks in this city. They are said to be executed with much neatness and ingenuity.

SHIPWRECKS.—Several melancholy casualties of this kind have lately taken place. The schr. Sophia, was lost near Currituck inlet, occasioned by a dense fog, in which the Captain lost his reckoning.—A sloopbound from St. John to Eastport was cast away on the night of the 13th ult. during a snow storm, on the island of Campobello, and Mr. Giles, of Bath, and three other persons were lost. The schr. Dolphin, Patten, from Yarmouth, for Halifax, was lost on the 23d ult. within 25 miles of the latter port; she had on board a cargo of West India produce, and upwards of $800 in specie, all of which was lost; crew saved. A schr. from Halifax for Chester, was lost on the 13th ult. on Little Brick Island; crew saved. The schr. Betsey-Jane, from Passamaquoddy for Shubenacdie, was lost on the 13th ult. in a severe snow storm; crew saved, but suffered much from cold.

A letter from St. Mary's of the 15th December, states that a vessel sent out by government from New-York, was wrecked a few days since in St. John's river.

NEW MINERAL SUBSTANCE.
The Quebec Gazette of the 13th Dec. states, that Mr. J. Denchar had found, a few weeks ago, a mineral substance embedded in striped limestone. It melts at the candle, and burns on a wick, or paper; nor is it acted upon in the cold, after five days' exposure to sulphuric muriatic, or nitric acid. He is now engaged with its analysis.

Three men of genteel appearance, have been arrested and committed, at Savannah, for passing counterfeit bills of the Banks of Virginia and Maryland. It seems they were concerned in an extensive manufactory.

A ROGUE.—Abner Emmons, of Essex county, (N. Y.) has advertised Timothy Danforth, who, while in his employ made off with a wagon and horse.

KENTUCKY.—The Legislature of Kentucky are still "pushing the Paper system"—having just passed another two years' replevin law, when the plaintiff will accept the commonwealth's paper, now 60 per cent below par."

NEW-YORK FULTON MARKET.—The stalls in the new market were sold on Thursday morning last. The highest price was $480—the lowest $115.

CARTHAGENA.—A letter dated Nov. 17, states that Carthage has at length been given up to the Republican army, by capitulation. The Patriots observe the strictest discipline, and have about five thousand men in the city.

The Boston Gazette of Monday says the thermometer at only 8° above zero on Sunday morning, at nine o'clock. Some glasses, in very exposed situations, were several degrees lower. Considerable ice has been made in the harbor, but not sufficient to obstruct navigation. There is good sleighing within 30 miles of Boston.

A new paper is about to be established at Baltimore, under the name of the Baltimore Iris and General Advertiser.

The New-York Legislature convened at Albany on Tuesday last. The circumstance of their meeting on the first day of the year, is novel, and will, probably, prevent them doing more than barely organizing the two houses.

Counterfeit notes of one hundred dollars of the Franklin Bank of Baltimore are in circulation, dated the 1st of December, 1819. There are but few genuine notes of that issue and amount now in circulation; the public will be cautious in receiving those bills.

The Washington City Gazette says that the legislature of South Carolina, assembled at Columbia, have, in caucus, not without some opposition, nominated for the office of President of the United States, the Hon. William Lowndes, at present a representative from that state in Congress.

Capt. Hyatt, arrived at New-York, from Trieste, states that the emperor of Austria had issued a proclamation that none of the Turkish emigrants should land in his dominions. Several vessels had arrived with emigrants, and were ordered to Venice.

Hard Times at Boston.—Fifteen pair of Grouse, brought from Martha's Vineyard to Boston, recently were sold in the market at five and six dollars per pair!

KENTUCKY.—A letter from Kentucky, states that the wheat of the last crop has been pretty generally destroyed by the weevil. That of a good quality commands from 74 to 87 cents—higher than it has been for some years.

ALLIGATOR'S PRIZE.—The examination, says the Boston Centinel, of the crew of the Portuguese ship sent into this port by the Alligator, for a piratical attack on her at sea, commenced on Thursday, before Judge Davis, and closed yesterday, when they were all discharged, nothing being found which made them amenable to the laws. We understand, that the learned Judge fully justified the conduct of lieutenant Stockton in sending the vessel in; and that she will be libelled for trial in March next.

FIRE.—A grist mill, saw mill, and a small building, in Alfred, Allegheny county, the property of F. & T. Palmer, of Canandaigua, (N. Y.) were destroyed by fire on the 14th ult. The loss is estimated at $4000.

As a proof of the confidence reposed in the New Government of Columbia, stated in a letter dated Santa Fe, Dec. 10, that Dr. Bollman, agent for the Government of Columbia the Salt Works at Salina, for twenty years, for the sum of millions of dollars to be paid in advance, and is now treating to take the debt amounting to about three and a half millions of dollars, at 7 per cent interest.

Mr. Cobbett, as we learn from the English papers, has thrown open the door of his house in Kensington, and converted it into a butcher's shop, where he proposes to sell meat at a reduced price. One of the papers of his own party, remarks—"We are glad that this modern 'Cade' has at last taken up a respectable calling; and sincerely hope that his present speculation in bullock's flesh will turn to be more advantageous to him than his late speculation in human bones."

ADVICE TO AUCTIONEERS.—We observe that at a late Auction sale, at Berners' Halls, Almonds, Port Wine, &c. that the notice 'a cold cut will be provided,' takes a conspicuous place in the advertisement. Something like this would bring crowds to our vendue range.

The U. S. schr. Grampus was off Cape Donna Maria, 30th Nov. with six persons on board, bound to Port-au-Prince.

John Gilman, (black,) has been arrested at Boston, and lodged in jail, for stealing surtouts, great coats, hats, &c. from different dwelling houses.

The Supreme Junta of Health at Lima, has prohibited vessels arriving from Philadelphia, New-York and Boston, from having any communication with the shore, without special permission from that Junta, notwithstanding their being furnished with clean bills of health.

President Boyer, by proclamation, under date of Port-au-Prince, Nov. 25th, continues the prohibition to export from Haiti, Specie, and Silver and Gold in any ingots; under penalty of confiscation if found on board any vessel.

BACHELORS BEWARE.—Notice was given on the 11th ult. in the legislature of Georgia, that a bill would be introduced imposing an additional poll tax on all bachelors over 25 years of age. This is extending our internal improvement farther than expected.

THE FORTY-SECOND HIGHLANDER.
The total number of men that belonged to the 42d, or Highland Regiment, from the year 1797 to 1816, was 13,187—1817 there were only three men living in the corps that fought against Bonaparte in Egypt!

A man by the name of Leander Cobbett, a native of Schenectady, New-York, put a period to his existence by hanging himself in the vicinity of Milledgeville, (Geo.) a short time since. Disappointed love is assigned as the cause of this incongruous act.

From the Lexington Reporter.
A Kentucky Pumpkin.—A genuine Pumpkin, measuring five feet six inches in circumference, weighing eighty-seven pounds, and raised by Major Fishel in the vicinity of this town, is now at I. Stickney's store.

From the Detroit Gazette.
A Michigan Pumpkin.—A Pumpkin was raised by Mr. H. Berthelette, near the city, the present season, which weighed 174 pounds 12 ounces, after it had been picked more than three weeks, and measured six feet and eight inches in circumference.

Arkansas, Nov. 18.
INDIAN MURDER.—A gentleman arrived here from the Mississippi, informs us that a most horrid and unprovoked murder was committed about the last of October, in the new purchase in the Choctaw Nation, on a party of United States' Surveyors, consisting of ten persons—only one of whom escaped. The murder was committed on the lower line, and about 150 miles from Fort Gibson, by Choctaw Indians. The quarrel we understand, originated in consequence of some trivial affair. Our informant received the above information from Col. Nichols, who passed up the Mississippi a few days since, on his way to the Chickasaw Bluffs, with the Chickasaw annuity.—Gazette.

From the Jamaica (L. I.) Farmer, of January 1.
Conjugal Felicity.—About three weeks since, a man who resides at Near-Rockaway, hung his wife! she was discovered while in this situation, by a family who resided in the house with them, cut down, and after considerable exertion was resuscitated; the next day the husband compromised the affair with his wife, by purchasing a crape dress for her!! We are informed he had previously threatened to kill her. No notice has as yet been taken of this affair by the civil authorities of Hempstead!

The above, we have from unquestionable authority, but think proper, for the present, to withhold the name of the wretch.

Georgetown, (S. C.) Dec. 20.
The steam boat Commerce, Capt. Rogers, arrived here on Wednesday last from Philadelphia. From the great length of her passage, serious apprehensions were entertained for her safety—this circumstance was owing, we understand, to her having performed the greater part of the voyage inland. She left Cape Fear about six o'clock in the evening, and, by means of steam alone, reached our bar by sunrise the next morning. The Commerce is intended for the navigation of the Pee Dee.

TO OUR PATRONS.

Upon the accession to the calendar, a new year, we offer the warmest congratulations, and the homage of our feigned respect to our various friends and patrons. We have had the gratification of finding the attempt at the publication of a newspaper successful in every incipency, and we cordially desire to express the utmost gratitude to those who have enabled it to be so. Whilst we express, however, our sensibility for the favours which have been bestowed upon us, we respectfully take leave to remind our friends, that without the stipendiary equivalent for our labour, we may ultimately encounter the fate, which has attended many of our predecessors, whose attempts, in consequence of their not having any "backing" from their patrons, have resulted in abortion. We are reluctant to appeal, in the early stage of our career, to the remembrance of those who have exhibited a disposition to aid our efforts, but we cannot refrain from saying with confidence, that "pay the Post Boy" is a maxim the observance of which is calculated at the start of a paper to secure its permanency. The extent of circulation, arising from an unhelped for augmentation of the list of subscribers, has induced us to make numerous emendations to our general plan, and to improve the character and features of the paper, so that it will hereafter be an inducement to merchants and others to honour us with their advertisements which are inserted at a very low rate, and may be read by upwards of one thousand citizens.

In our attempts to beautify the appearance of the EVENING POST, we publish it to day for the first time, with a new ornamental and decorative head.

THE LADIES.—A motion has been made in the lower house of congress, to permit the admission of ladies upon the floor of the chamber, or in other parts within the bar, in order that they may be more conveniently accommodated than they now are in the GALLERY. This motion has excited much attention, a great deal of tilting among the gallant cavaliers at Washington—and more mirth in the precincts of the drawing rooms. The ladies are doing great homage to the honourable member, we learn, and it has been actually proposed in the circuit of the female assemblages, to crown him with a laurel, in the event of his motion succeeding. This courtesy, it is said, is not without example, the legislature of Kentucky having joggled the minds of the national representatives, to a full sense of their heretofore forgotten or neglected good breeding. In the course of last month, Mr. Worthington, of that state, moved in his representative house, "That ladies be admitted to take seats in the hall of the house, upon the invitation of the speaker, and advocated the adoption of his motion in a most gallant speech of about twenty minutes. And the house unanimously agreed to the motion."

But we suspect there are other motives, besides that of politeness to the softer sex, which impelled the mover to this act.

Their applause and admiration are coveted, and naturally too, by every orator, young and old—and we well remember being present at the hall of the house of delegates at Annapolis, when a member now engaged on a foreign mission, made his most successful attempt at a speech, about a project to move the house, from the hurried desire of being looked at by a party of ladies, who were invited within the bar, upon an accidental occasion. It is probable too that the scheme at Washington proceeded from a course of exclusion from certain tea parties by the women—similar too and predicated probably upon a plan once carried into operation in this city. A notable body of lawyers held a peccolodical supper club, from a participation of which, not only all ladies, but also of the house was excluded. The sex out of resentment, formed a club of their own, and excluded also not only all the formidable supper association of lawyers, but the master also of the house—a scheme, however, which their propensity to the enjoyment of educated male society soon caused to be abandoned.

The remarks upon the general performances of Mr. Pelby, and of Mrs. Pelby's Cora last evening, came at least one hour too late for insertion in this day's paper.—We agree with the writer that that lady is certainly the most interesting actress in that particular character that has been for some time seen.

It is with pleasure we announce the recovery of Major Gen. Brown, who has arrived at New-York, on his way to the seat of government.

A suspicious looking person presented a check for $9090, upon the Branch Bank in Boston, drawn by Thomas Wilson, Cashier of the U. States Bank, to the order of J. Britton. The check was not paid, and the person is held for examination.

STRAW HATS.

The American Consul at Leghore, Mr. Appleton, has forwarded by the brig Edward D. Douglass, to Mr. Dana, President of the Agricultural Society of Massachusetts, four bushels of seed, which produces the straw from which the noted Leghorn hats are manufactured. The transmission of the seed is accompanied with instructions for its cultivation, and for preparing and fabricating the Hat. One of the most expensive articles of dress imported into the United States may therefore shortly be constructed at home, and though the public revenue may gain no profit from that circumstance, individual economy will of course be promoted. He says that "the whole process from planting to its perfect bleached state for manufacture is five months."—It is gratifying to perceive the attention bestowed upon the agricultural interests of the country by our Consuls abroad, whose business appertains more to commercial relations. This gentleman has already introduced into America—the olive tree—the vine—the hemp seed of Bologna—the flax of Cremona, and the celebrated Lupinella grass.

WASHINGTON.

The long looked for Statue of WASHINGTON, executed by Canova, Prince of Ischia, which was some time since contracted for, by the commissioners, under an act of Assembly of the patriotic state of North Carolina, has at length arrived. It is to be erected at Raleigh, the capitol of that state, and is represented to be of exquisite design, style and workmanship.—The Marble composing the Statue and Pedestal is said to be of the whitest and purest quality, and the figure shaped so as to appertain rather to an incumbent posture. This state has the honour, to have been the first to have erected a monumental record of the deeds of the illustrious, the unexampled and lamented chieftain, the memory of whom, its durability will assist to perpetuate.

The example is laudable, spirited and praiseworthy—the emulation of it must be equally so. In describing its arrival, and reception, at Raleigh, and the arrangement consequent upon that event, the REGISTER of that place goes on to say, that "the likeness is good, nor could it well be otherwise, for it was copied from a bust in Gesso, taken from life by the celebrated Carracci, when in this country. The figures on the four sides of the pedestal are the production of Trontanove, the favourite pupil of Canova, and are in basso relievo. They are formed and grouped with the most exquisite taste, and commemorate the four greatest events, civil and military, in the life of the illustrious man they are intended to celebrate, viz:

1. The surrender of Cornwallis;
2. The resignation of General Washington at the close of the war.
3. Represents the Hero, like Cincinnatus, holding the Plough, on his return to private life.
4. In the act of accepting the Presidency of the United States."

The munificence of that state is a strong attestation of the gratitude it owes to the Father of the Country, the declaration of whose independence it was the very first to propose, and whose fame it assisted so largely to erect.

It was not long since stated in the Baltimore Morning Chronicle, that the Students at the Medical College in that city were as distinguished for their decorous behaviour, as they were remarkable for their sedulous attention to the pursuit of their professional studies. We regret that a late occurrence deprives us of a coveted opportunity to run a parallel between their deportment and that of the students here—though, we are assured that this instance has not been preceded by any similar act of wantonness.—The gaiety and hilarity of the Christmas festivals not having subsided on new years night (says the Sentinel) a number of young men took it in their heads to break the city lamps, and commenced at the corner of Ninth and Market-street, but fortunately, the watchman made his appearance at the time, and interrupted them in their sport, and with the assistance of several watchmen, succeeded in taking a number of young men to the watch-house. On Wednesday they appeared before the Mayor, and the one who broke the lamp was fined, and actually paid one hundred dollars for the offence. One of them, upon his friend being fined, remarked in the lobby at the Mayor's office, that if he had to pay that sum for breaking a lamp, he would break all the lamps in the city. He was also brought before his honor, and compelled to enter into recognizance of $1000 to appear at the next Mayor's Court, to answer, and in the mean time to keep the peace.

These young men, it was stated, were from the southern states, and though many allowances, are to be made for the frivolities of youth on holiday occasions—we applaud the vigilance and integrity of the police, which secured the public property from destruction.

Since the above was in type, we learn that only one person, he who actually broke the lamp on Tuesday night was implicated in that affair, his companions disavowing all participation in the design to disturb the public peace. They unhesitatingly disapproved also, as we are informed, of the expressions which produced the recognizance of one of their party, for his appearance at the next mayor's court.

DRAMATIC SUMMARY.

Mr. Phillips' benefit took place on Monday evening last, at Boston. He exhibited O'Keefe's opera of Fountainbleau, and the operetta of Brother and Sister. On the following evening, the managers announced what they were pleased to term the domestic tragedy of GEORGE BARRELL, Harlequin Oceanus, and the Miller and his Men. Monsieur La Basse, has in rehearsal at the same theatre, a new grand spectacle.

At the Amphitheatre, Mr. West has commenced, in addition to his horsemanship, the representation of dramatic pieces, and announces the Snow Storm, as having been got up in a superior and unusual style.

WALLACE; or the Hero of Scotland, at the Walnut Street Theatre on Monday evening next. UNBORN was repeated last night for the third time in America.

Mr. Gilfert's company of Charleston, are performing at Savannah. Mr. Keene's first appearance is announced in JOHN OF PARIS, on the 21st ult. on which evening Mr. Frederick Brown, whose merits are highly lauded, played the THREE SISTERS, with the original explanatory prologue.—On Christmas eve, that manager repeated DAMON AND PYTHIAS, (Damon, Mr. Brown, Pythias, Mr. Robertson) and announced KING LEAR as being in rehearsal.

An Olympic Theatre is opened at Savannah, under the management of Mr. Blanchard.

Mr. Haddock is exhibiting his Androcles at Baltimore. At the concert hall in that city, Mrs. Richardson, formerly of this theatre, gave a vocal and instrumental entertainment on the 2d inst. at which she advertised herself for no less than seventeen songs—her husband presiding at the piano—(cheap music.) She was to be accompanied in the echo song by the musical glasses.

The performances at the Theatre New York last evening, were the tragedy of the ROBBERS, the farce of the PRIZE, and the drama of the WARLOCK OF THE GLEN. The gentlemen attached to the company, held their annual green-room festival on the second instant, in the saloon of the theatre.

Mr. Pelby's benefit took place last evening at the Prune Street Theatre. He performed the character of Rolla, and his wife that of Cora. At the termination of the tragedy, there was a loud call for his appearance before the curtain, in compliance with which, he presented himself, and thanked the audience for their many favours. A request was then made that he should be re-engaged for three nights (a singular thing for an audience to determine the length of an engagement) Mr. Porter came forward and informed the house in a very clear and explicit manner, "that he was authorized by Mr. Stanislas to state, that he was at all times willing to gratify the wishes of his patrons, and that in the present instance, he would on his part manifest a desire to comply with their demand, a circumstance which depended solely upon Mr. Pelby himself." We suppose the meaning of this to be if they can agree upon terms, so that we know not if he is to be engaged or not.

CHARLESTON, DECEMBER 26.

Captain Kennard, of the ship Maria Tufton, has favored us with Bahia papers to the 4th ult. and with the following verbal intelligence:

On Saturday, Nov. 3d, there arose a disturbance at St. Salvador, between the European and Brazilian Portuguese; the latter being dissatisfied with the present administration, had made an attempt to force out of office the governor and all his adherents, but owing to disorder and bad management (though in sufficient force to have carried their point) they suffered several of their leaders to be made prisoners, who were confined on board a frigate to be sent to Lisbon. The Brazilians still held possession of the most formidable fortification on the Bay on the 8th, and threatened if the frigate was got under way, that they would sink her. All business was suspended from the 2d to the 8th, in consequence.

The Maria Tufton was detained several days awaiting the signatures of men who had fled from their offices. The European inhabitants were so panic struck when the alarm was first given that they fled in every direction. Several who could not readily find boats to put them on board the shipping plunged into the Bay. The alarm had so far subsided on the 8th, that the custom house was open. There were but two or three lives lost during the disturbance. The Brazilians were still holding out, and it was supposed that they expected aid from the adjacent country.

The Senate of Pennsylvania have passed a bill reducing the rate of interest to five per cent. and it will, very probably, become a law of the State.

The drawing of the Pennsylvania State Lottery, second class, commences on Monday next, under the management of G. W. Waite, Esq.

The police jurisdiction of the town of Boston is about to undergo a change; by which it will be invested with the character and powers of a city government.

The Geneva Gazette announces that the navigation of the Western Canal is closed by ice.

DIED, yesterday morning, Mr. JAMES WILKINS, aged 78 years, for a long series of years a respectable inhabitant of this city.

DIED, on the 4th inst. in the 43rd year of his age, Mr. LEWIS ROBINSON, Merchant, of this city.

At a supper given by the gentlemen of the dramatic corps, at New-York, Mr. Noah, was presented by Mr. Price the manager, with two splendid silver pitchers, as a testimony of a sense of the benefit derived from his productions. Mr. N. seems to excite universal esteem, and his merits and personal virtues, certainly entitle him to it. His services in the cause of the New-York theatre are extensively known, and the distinction by which the good sense of Mr. Price has marked them, was no less deserving. It may be remembered that on the night of the conflagration of that theatre Mr. Noah had a benefit, at which the citizens conferred upon him upwards of 1300 dollars, every cent of which he refused to take from the treasury, in consequence of that calamity.

THE OLIO.

"Variety is the spice of life,

EPICURUS.

The other day, says Ned to Joe,
(Near Bellam's confines groping.)
"When e'er I hear the cry of woe, My hand is always open."

"I own," says Joe, "that to the poor,
You prove it every minute,
Your hand is open to be sure;
But then there's—NOTHING in it."

So ILL-HE-AD his books conducted.

A LOVE LETTER.

From a Tailor to a Mantua-maker.

Remnant of my hopes!
May I be ripped from the borders of your esteem, and never to be buttoned to the loop of your kindness, but I am strongly seamed to the hem of your beauty: may I never lose a thimble-full of your favour,
but you have so entangled the thread of my understanding with that pretty outside of yours, that I am stark mad to be your—Oddsbodkins, I am surely yours, every stitch of me. Wherever you go you are my north, and my needle follows you: blunt
not, therefore, the point of my endeavours,
but let me baste myself to your kindness,
that I may set the tighter to your affections.
I love you beyond measure, but yet it is so hard to cabbage one sweet look from you, that I almost despair of having enough to finish my suit.

Pray put a favourable construction on this, and for the same I shall always sit cross-legged for your sake, being my dearest little flounce.

Yours, P. C.

An Irish gentleman in a tavern, seeing that the lights were so dim as only to render darkness visible, called out lustily—
"Here, waiter, let me have a couple of danccent candles, just that I may see how those others burn!"

A gentleman lately dining on a very tough piece of beef began scratching his plate with his knife—on being asked the reason, he replied, he wanted "to set his teeth on edge."

The Abbe Mably used to contend, that the class of society in which he found the greatest number of "respectable men" was the hackney coachmen. However oppressive
the times, he said, they preserve a perfect freedom of soul—they support their rights with their fists—and say on all "proper" occasions the most abusive things to all that fall in their way, without respect to rank or sex.

The Abbe Galiani being one day present at the French theatre when every body
around him was in ecstasies at Mademoiselle Arnould's singing—his opinion of it being asked, he answered, "It is the finest asthma that I ever heard."

A wealthy cowkeeper, hearing that a house had failed in which he had placed a large sum of money, told a friend in his distress "that he should now be reduced to live quite like a private gentleman."

Economy.—Sir Robert Brown, when his eldest daughter was given over, on that uncertainty sent for an undertaker, and bargained for the funeral, in hopes of having it cheaper, as it was possible she might recover.

The Count de la Tourville, gentleman to the Prince de Conde, wrote The Four Seasons, in the Climate of Paris; a Poem of a single verse. It had prefixed explanatory paragraphs—and the following was the first and last canto:—

"Rain and wind, and wind and rain,"
This master-piece he recited to a friend, who was somewhat difficult to please.—
"At least you will not find it too long," he modestly observed. "Pardon me," said the critic, "it is too long by half. Wind and rain would have said all."

SOLDIER'S MUSIC.

A soldier asked his comrade, one evening,
to go into a dram shop, to hear a fiddle;
to which the other replied, "None of your footy music for me; give me the roaring of a 24 pounder, a clap of thunder and now
and then an earthquake."

The most happy women, are those who are married to sensible men—for the latter suffer themselves to be governed, with so much the more pleasure as they are always masters of themselves.

To preserve Beef tender and sweet, throughout the year.

For one hundred weight of Beef, prepare
the following:
Four quarts of coarse salt, made fine;
Four pounds of brown sugar;
Four ounces of salt petre.

Mix these articles well together; then rub your meat with it, and pack closely in the barrel. Sufficient pickle will soon be made in the cask by this process. By no means use any water, as it will spoil the meat when the weather becomes warm.

If, any time a scum rises on the barrel,
skim it off, and sprinkle into it a little fine salt, which will preserve the pickle. Some persons, fearing their beef will be injured in warm weather, take out the pickle and boil it. This is wrong, as it will harden the beef, and entirely change its flavour.
